QUESTIONS OF THE WEEK

(Note: Here are the questions asked most frequently by Virginia farmers during the past week, as reported by county agents. The answers are supplied by staff members of the VPI Agricultural Extension Service).

Q.- What grass - legume mixture would you seed this fall for pasture or hay?

A.- The mixture used will depend on the area of the state and the individual farm needs. County agents have just received a list of suggested mixtures for throughout Virginia. The publication also includes information on the use, soil adaptation, and management practices which will give most satisfactory results for each mixture.

Q.- How can I reclaim permanent pasture which has been damaged by drouth?

A.- You can reclaim pasture in two ways. (1) Make complete renovation, including seed bed preparation, liming, fertilizing and reseeding. (2). If the pasture still has a half-stand of desirable grasses and legumes, use good grazing management, topdressing, and application of lime where needed.

Ask your county agent, or write the VPI Agricultural Extension Service, Blacksburg, for Bulletin 194, Leaflet 40, and Circular 333, for further details.

Q.- When should I cut my tobacco? The top is green and the bottom leaves are showing heavy damage from firing.

A.- Remember, first of all, that tobacco companies want, above all else, ripe tobacco. If your tobacco is firing at the bottom, ripe in the middle, and green in the top, don't be too quick to cut it. Many growers lose money by cutting immature tobacco. Generally the loss from firing at the bottom of the plant is more than offset by improvement in weight and quality of leaves in the middle and top when the tobacco is not cut until most of the top leaves are mature.

Firing of bottom leaves can be reduced by topping when three-fourths of the plants are in flower, and by keeping plants clean of suckers.

One way to save bottom leaves that may otherwise be lost is to prime and string the three to five bottom leaves.

Q.- What can I use to kill quack grass and Johnson grass?

A.- Use 1-2 pound or so of TCA, or 1-4 pound of Delapon, mixed in water, per square rod. Applications made now should give satisfactory results.

Q.- How can I fit the soil bank program into my farm operations?

A.- This is a matter for careful consideration on the part of every individual farmer. There will be almost as many answers as there are farms in Virginia. Study the soil bank program carefully, consult your local agricultural advisors, before making a decision.

Q. What can I do to increase the food supply from my garden?

A.- Right now, proper harvesting and storage are foremost in gardening circles. Harvest vegetables for storage when mature and store under proper conditions. Late tomatoes can be stored just before frost. Pull up the entire vine with the tomatoes on it and hang up under shelter to prevent freezing. Remove fruit as it ripens.

Late fall and winter crops, such as turnips, kale, collards, and spinach may be prey to many insects. Malathion will control almost all insects that attack these vegetables.

Looking to the future, seed a cover crop — one pound of Italian rye grass and two pounds of crimson clover for each 1,000 square feet, in September. Oats, barley, or rye, seeded at the rate of 4 to 6 pounds per 1,000 square feet may make better growth and cover when seeded late. If fall and winter vegetables remain in the garden, seed cover crop between the rows.

The September term of the circuit court of Buckingham County began this week, with Judge J. W. Flood presiding.

Mayor Explains Position Of Town on Rural Fire Protection

Appomattox volunteer firemen will continue to answer out-of-town calls as in the past, until December 31.

Appomattox Mayor Richard D. Robinson issued the following statement this morning regarding the town's fire alarm policy:

"There has been a lot of water spurted since the year 1926. That was the year the Town of Appomattox purchased its first fire-fighting equipment. This was a Model T Ford Fire Engine. The writer understands prior to the purchase of this Model T Fire Engine there was a hand operated reel, equipped with hose, hatchet and buckets that supplied to a degree the needs of fire fighting paraphernalia.

"Through the years the growth of our Town has expanded immensely. The calls and demands of our fire company have also been decidedly increased, It has been apparent for quite some time that additional fire equipment is needed to protect the county citizens as well as those of us within the Town of Appomattox. We have reason to believe the purchase of an additional fire truck will become a reality in the very near future.

"To a great many people, possibly even you, never realized the present Appomattox Fire Truck and equipment was purchased by tax dollars from the people of the Town of Appomattox only. With ever increasing demands for fire fighting service, it cannot be expected of the Town to furnish this service whenever and wherever it is called outside the boundary of the Corporate Limits of the Town of Appomattox, leaving the Town without any fire protection whatsoever.

"The previous practice for the past twenty-five years, of answering all fire calls in the County does not make it morally or ethically correct. Our first obligation is to the people who's taxes purchased the fire equipment.

"At a special meeting of the Appomatox Town Council on September 6th, the Council through mutual agreement with the Appomatox County Board of Supervisors has agreed to continue the fire service, both in Town and County until December 31, 1956.

Richard D. Robinson,
Mayor."

Tobacco Sales Expected To Equal 1955

Thomas B. Hall, General Manager of the Virginia Dark-Fired Tobacco Marketing Association, has estimated that barring storms of extremely bad weather between now and the opening day of sales, approximately 12,000,000 pounds of leaf will be sold in the dark-fired belt. He believes that prospects are good for a fair return to the growers.

This is about equal to the crop marketed last year. However, it is now believed that perhaps the '56 crop will be of better quality. last year there was considerable hurricane damage to the leaf, in addition to costly wildfiring.

Of the estimated sales, Hall expects about 10,500,000 pounds of dark-fired tobacco and 1,500,000 of sun-cured leaf in the belt.

There has been noted an improvement in demand and sales of dark-fired leaf for the export trade.

Some experts foresee a decrease in the production of sun - cured tobacco in this section, taking note that the majority of tabocco acreage taken out of production under the Soil Bank program has been in this category.

Appomattox County is ranked as the top county in the dark-fired tobacco belt, although in recent years a wide diversification of farming activity here has lessened the position of dark tobacco as the county's pay-off crop.

C. W. Smith Attending Meeting of Va. Clerks

C. W. Smith, Appomattox County Court Clerk, left today to attend the annual sessions of the Virginia Court Clerk's Association. The sessions are being held at the Hotel Roanoke, and will conclude Saturday.

Representative Watkins M. Abbitt warned this week that Virginians should not "capitulate" to the theory that there is no hope of operating Virginia's schools on a segregated basis.

On the contrary, he said, "the people of Virginia will neither support nor toierate integrated public schools."

The Appomattox Congressman declared further that he is "convinced that integration will wreck the public school system of Virginia."

In a sharply-worded address at Farmville, Representative Abbitt struck full force against the Supreme Court's decision on public school segregation and forthrightly declared, "I for one am not willing to compromise on the issue of segregation" and warned against "dragging feet" on meeting the challenge laid down by those who would force integration by federal order.

Abbitt warned that to accept integration anywhere is to "admit the validity of the Supreme Court decision and the legality of integration." For this reason, he said, "I am opposed to the so-called assignment plan."

In a clear-cut endorsement of Governor Stanley's efforts, Representative Abbitt said: "I desire to stand with the Governor of Virginia in his determination to preserve the public schools of Virginia by continuing the operation of the schools on a segregated basis. I do not agree with those eminent citizens who now contend that there is no hope of operating the schools of Virginia on a segregated basis. They profess to favor segregation but are willing to capitulate and surrender before the first skirmish is over and before any real effort is made to preserve our way of life. I do not believe that we must integrate or disband the schools. We are fighting for a principle and I am not willing to compromise that principle in the slightest."
